Fulton Firm To Pave Mayfield Streets

The Mayfield City Council voted Monday night to award the contract for paving of four miles of streets to Ken-Tenn Construction Co. The firm's bid of $51,310.57 to do the work was the lowest received. The only other bidder was Middle West Road of Gilbertsville whose bid was $52,484.46.

Mayor Harry Vandergriff said upon completion of the project, 90 per cent of the city's hard-surface streets will have been resurfaced during the past three years.

Chief Smith Makes No Comment On Pay Reduction; Ruling Sought On Action

Chief of Police J. W. "Duck" Smith returned from his vacation Sunday night to find that the Fulton City Commission had voted 3-2 to reduce his salary by $75.00, to $325.00 a month. The motion to reduce the Chief's salary was made by Commissioner Bob McCain and seconded by Commissioner Bill Rice, who has been at odds with the former Highway Patrolman almost since both assumed their respective duties in Fulton's official family.

(The News has been reliably informed by many sources that Chief Smith once ordered Commissioner Rice out of City Hall because the Commissioner was using unbecoming language in front of City employees and patrons. Rice led the action to employ Smith as chief of police.)

(Chief Smith is the second City employee to feel the brunt of Rice's reprisals. Roland Baxter, whose employment as City Manager was heartily endorsed by Rice, was later dismissed before his (Baxter's) six months trial employment was consummated. It was Rice who led the action to dismiss Baxter.

(It was also Commissioner Rice who negotiated with and interviewed Jim Robey to come to Fulton as City Manager. At a recent meeting of the Commission, Rice proposed a motion to dismiss Robey. The motion failed to get a second.

(Shortly after Rice took office the News reported that the Commissioner was seeking to dismiss former City Clerk Martha Smith. When Miss Smith resigned, Rice circulated a petition to have her remain in office.)

Voting with Rice and McCain to reduce Chief Smith's salary was Mayor Gilbert DeMyer. In discussing the matter with the Mayor the News learned that DeMyer had abstained from voting on the original ordinance setting forth the salary and employment of Smith. DeMyer's reason for abstaining from voting on the ordinance was that he felt the salary was not in keeping with prior salaries paid to former police chiefs.

Meanwhile City Attorney Brantly Amberg has sought an opinion from the Attorney General to learn if the Commission can legally reduce the Chief's salary after it has been set by ordinance "for not more than two years." Chief Smith has held his position for less than that time. Other sources indicate that the Commission cannot reduce the Chief's salary, nor dismiss him except to prove charges of moral turpitude.

Chief Smith had no comment to make on the reduction of his salary, except to indicate that public opinion may be the deciding factor.

Final action will be taken at a special meeting of the Commission Tuesday night, July 16. An ordinance must be drawn and approved before a salary reduction can be put into force.

Also to be read and voted on at the July 16 meeting will be the Appropriation (budget) Ordinance, Plumbing Code Ordinance, Housing Code Ordinance, and Water Rate Ordinance.

The revised budget as submitted by the City Manager last night and approved by the Commission is a balanced budget with an estimated $5,835.00 surplus. The original recommendations made by Robey ran some $20,000.00 over expected revenue, with the reduced budget made possible by cutting several major items from the budget combined with the fact that the fiscal year has now ended and more exacting information has become available.

Commissioners Charles Robert Bennett and Clarence Moline favored the recommendation of the City Manager to leave the Chief's salary at $400.00.

"I don't question whether he is doing the job," DeMyer said in casting his vote. "What I object to is the pay difference between the chief and the patrolmen."

Robey was strong in his defense of Chief Smith, saying, "When I came to Fulton, he was one of the most qualified persons I encountered. The city should be proud to have men of his calibre in its services."

Morgan Davidson, Pioneer Resident Dies On Monday

There are two words in the English language, when used together, spell out a way of life. For as long as we have known Morgan Davidson, there seemed no other way to think of him than to put the words, country gentleman together and sum up the kind of a man that he was.

The term, when applied to our very good friend, Morgan Davidson had the connotation of graceful living, thoughtfulness, vision, energy and a certain charm that is associated with working with the land and progressing with things that grow.

He was a member of a distinguished pioneer family whose taproots are deep in the tradition of developing their land and their environments. He was the fourth generation to live on the farm home-place on the outskirts of Fulton.

Mr. Davidson was one of those people whose voice had a happy sound. Last week we took him some flowers while he was confined to the Fulton Hospital where he died on Monday. His fading eyesight may have dimmed his vision of our token, but his heart was strong and warm and friendly with appreciation for our visiting him. His sincere expression of gratitude made us glad that we had this wonderful man as our friend.

He was a well read, well informed and keenly interested in the affairs of his community, his State and the world. Often he called just to chat of events of the day. He never failed to make us know that he was our devoted friend and neighbor. He made that known to everybody who had the privilege of his close friendship or acquaintance.

Mr. Davidson attended Valparaiso University at Valparaiso, Indiana and lacked a few weeks receiving his degree in civil engineering when he had to return to the farm due to his father's failing health. He did custom surveying in addition to farming for many years and was elected to the office of county surveyor when that was an elective office.

He was born on August 4, 1878, the son of the late William Charles and Sara Dixon Hawkins Davidson.

Mr. Davidson was married to the former Mary Edna Nugent, who died in 1960.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Warren Graham of Fulton, and a son, Charles Mason Davidson, Signal Mountain, Tenn., also a granddaughter, Mrs. Carlton W. Borden, Jr., of Madison, Tenn., and several cousins.

Mr. Davidson was a member and ordained elder in the Union Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, July 9, in Whitel Pine Funeral Chapel with Rev. W. L. Cottrell and Rev. W. T. Barnes officiating. Interment was in Union Cumberland Presbyterian Church Cemetery.

What Is Combs Going To Do? Reports Say He Is "Out" For Federal Judge Position

Ed's Note: One of the most frequently asked questions in the realm of politics these days is "What Is Bert Combs Going To Do When He Leaves Office?" Richard Harwood, writing for the Louisville Times from Washington recently, has interviewed the Governor and from the story it appears that the gentleman whose term expires in November is "out" as a Federal Judge. Here's the story:

By RICHARD HARWOOD
Courier-Journal & Times Bureau
Washington, June 18 — Governor Bert Combs announced that he's not interested in an appointment to the federal judiciary.

The announcement relieves a sticky political problem for the Kennedy Administration in choosing a successor to Federal Judge H. Church Ford of Lexington, who retired January 1.

For months Democratic Representative John Watts, a member of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, has been supporting his former law partner, United States District Attorney B. T. Moynahan, Jr., of Nicholasville, for the Ford vacancy.

Watts' support in Ways and Means is essential if the Administration's Social Security medical insurance plan for the elderly is to be approved by the committee. His support is also necessary to win committee approval of certain tax reforms sought by the Administration this year.

Watts has said that the selection of the judge for the Ford vacancy will not influence his voting. But Moynahan's appointment could be expected to improve his relations with the White House, nonetheless.

So long as Combs was considered a candidate for the judgeship, the Administration was hardly free to ignore him.

The primary victory of Edward T. Breathitt in the governor's race has made Combs the top Democrat in Kentucky. Combs supported Breathitt in his race against A. B. Chandler.

The Governor stepped into the situation Tuesday with a statement that he doesn't wish to be considered a candidate.

"I want to finish out my term as Governor," he said. "And then I hope to practice some law and try to make some money."

Combs has been under pressure from Lieutenant Governor Wilson Wyatt and others to make a bid for the judgeship.

Wyatt presumably would like to serve as governor in the months remaining in the Combs' Administration.

But Combs said that, as Breathitt's chief political sponsor, he felt obliged to remain in office through the November campaign. (Continued on page ten)

"Stars In My Crown" Opens Drama School; No Fees, No Tuition

In the evenings this summer, the sixty-some members of the "Stars In My Crown" cast are performing at Kenlake Amphitheatre. During the days, they are going to school.

A Summer School of the Theatre has been set up by the players of "Stars In My Crown," with the help of the West Kentucky Productions Association and Murray State College. Its purpose is to offer instruction in performance aspects of dramatic production, and is a natural outgrowth of the cultural and educational objectives of the West Kentucky Productions Association.

Enrollment in the school's classes is not restricted to members of the "Stars In My Crown" cast, however, John Seitz, chairman of the Company Committee which supervises the school, said last week:

"We would be very happy to have any person in West Kentucky enroll. There are no fees or tuition to be paid, and the main thing we would expect would be regular attendance."

The classes are being taught by the most experienced members of the "Stars In My Crown" cast and company, and are described as "performance courses"—meaning that their purpose is to help students understand and perfect methods of performance in the theatre. These types of courses are not offered by high schools and colleges, as Professor Robert Johnston, director of drama at Murray State College, confirmed when he offered fullest cooperation to the school program.

With the help of Professor Johnston, classroom space at Murray State College has been provided for certain of the classes.

Other classes meet regularly at the Kenlake Amphitheatre. It is expected that concerts and special performances by members of the classes will later be offered to the public.

The classes are of four kinds: acting, dancing, music, and theatre production. Enrollments in the classes will be accepted through July 15 at the "Stars In My Crown" offices at Murray or Kenlake.

The acting techniques class, which is taught by two of the leading players in "Stars In My Crown"—John Seitz and James Woodall, deals with voice production and interpretation of dialogue and with individual training in action and gesture.

Seitz, a Louisville native, and Woodall, from Tampa, Fla., have had extensive experience with such organizations as the Barter Theatre, Pittsburgh Playhouse, and the Professional Actor's Group of Hollywood.

Ballet, modern dance, tap, and possibly acrobatic dancing will be taught by the solo dancers of the show. They are Mimi Wathen, instructor in dance at Indiana University and a two-year veteran of the Radio City Music Hall ballet (as well as other dance organizations), and Kendall Dingman, well known solo dancer from Jacksonville, Fla., who holds a scholarship with the American Ballet School, New York City.

The Music Director of the production, Jack Boyd of Paducah, is teaching sight-reading for singers. If there is sufficient interest, an opera workshop—which would produce scenes from grand opera and modern works—may also be started.

Two classes in theatre production have been organized. The first in stage scenery and lighting, is conducted by Alan Kirk, the technical director of the show, and Taylor Brooks, its master electrician. The second is in stage make-up, and is taught by Burnet M. Hobgood, general director of "Stars In My Crown." The former are from the University of Florida and the latter is from Florida State University. (Continued on page ten)

Young Will Sowles New Ken-Tenn Golf Champ

Will Sowles, a 16-year-old high school senior from Memphis, Tenn., is the 1963 Ken-Tenn Golf Champion, having won the 18-hole playoff at the Fulton Country Club on Sunday afternoon.

The Ken-Tenn Invitational, a 36-hole medal tournament, which was concluded Sunday, June 30, ended in a three-way tie between Sowles, Walter Shirah of Louisville and Max McDade of Fulton, with scores of 150. Darkness prevented a sudden death playoff, and the 18-hole playoff was scheduled between the three players.

The match was close between Sowles and Shirah all the way, with McDade falling behind with a three-over par-8 on the long No. 3 hole, and never overcoming his deficit.

Jo's
Notebook

There is an old saying that goes: "It's better to light one candle than to curse the darkness." That's exactly what Fulton people, opposing the City Manager form of government, are going to have to do to solve the immediate problems at City Hall. According to Kentucky Statutes, Fulton will have no opportunity until 1966 to change the present form of government. We simply cannot continue to blame all of our current problems on a situation that cannot be resolved for three years hence. We must face today's problems, today.

At the outset let me say that this newspaper was strongly in favor of the City Manager form of government when the issue was presented to the voters a few years ago. We have not changed our opinion one bit, except to realize more and more that the administration of Fulton's municipal affairs is big business and it is impossible to operate a competent business of any kind with sideline attention.

As far as I can see it, the most vociferous critics of the kind of government we have now are not really opposed to the administrative set-up; they're opposed to the City Manager's salary. They are not really opposed to Jim Robey as an individual; they're vehement about the fact that he makes about $7,200.00 a year. Jim is a highly competent, experienced, qualified City Manager. The mystery to me is that he keeps right on working, planning and hoping for the kind of city management that will bring Fulton to progressive standards of other cities in America. Every item the City Manager proposed in the new budget would have enhanced the beauty of our city, increased the efficiency in the operation of our various departments, and placed us high in the great competition to attract industry to our city. He seems to be dedicated in his duties, in spite of the constant harassment from citizens and officials.

But Jim Robey found out what a lot of us have known for a long time... that people want progressive municipal benefits, without commensurate taxation; they want a trained expert to manage their affairs, with the salary of a ribbon clerk; in simple terms, they want a whole lot of something, bought with a whole lot of nothing.

I have some stock questions for people who criticize Jim Robey, the City Manager form of government and the City Manager's salary.

I get some stock answers too. They go something like this:

Q—If we fire Jim Robey can we find a man of equal experience, training and ability for any less?

A—I don't think so!

Q—If we fired the City Manager, and tried to operate with-

Can South Fulton Close Piggly-Wiggly on Sunday And Yet Permit Other Firms To Operate Legally?

Last week, we noticed that influence is being brought to bear on the South Fulton City Council to prohibit a large super-market in that city from doing business on Sunday. The story we read indicated that the effort was being made to close Piggly-Wiggly Grocery Store on Sunday "in the public interest."

Rev. Hulon Allen, a very prominent citizen of South Fulton, told the South Fulton Council that "he was representing only himself" in asking for the action, so we must assume that he was appearing in connection with the moral aspect of performing servile labor on the Sabbath.

We would be the last persons to question the right of a respected minister to bring about this reform in his city. But we think that it is within our province to ask the question: "Why Piggly-Wiggly Supermarket and nothing else?"

We commend the South Fulton City Council for delaying action on the matter until a public hearing is held. For we hope that it will be brought out in that proposed meeting why one BIG BUSINESS is being asked to close, while smaller enterprises may be permitted to operate on Sunday without any condemnation or bother.

For years, small neighborhood groceries on both sides of the border have done a rather brisk business on Sundays. As far as we can recall there has never been any cry raised because these small enterprises choose to give up their leisure on Sundays to accommodate their customers, and pick up some extra business to boot.

But be that as it may. Both Kentucky and Tennessee have Sunday Blue Laws. Louisville is trying desperately to enforce the law, with some measure of success. We say some measure, because the same questions are asked in Louisville by business and church leaders that will be asked in Fulton and South Fulton if pressure will close one business, while others may operate merrily along.

Actually the South Fulton City Council is being asked to legislate morality. Is it sinful to buy a loaf of bread, a can of beans or a hamburger steak at Piggly-Wiggly and yet be morally proper to go into a drug store to buy a bottle of perfume, a gallon of ice cream, soft drinks, smokes, cosmetics or drugs?

Should the purchase of gasoline, automobile tires, and service be looked upon with favor on Sundays? Is it proper for a florist to deliver corsages, wedding decorations, or funeral tributes on Sunday?

Doing the laundry at home on Sunday is frowned on by most people, yet it is proper to condone the operation of a launderette and dry cleaning firm, while a grocery store is being asked to close.

What about restaurants? They are operated by people who labor on the Sabbath and they sell prepared food. Should we focus our wrath on a big store that sells groceries with which to prepare our food at home, and look away from the establishment that sells it prepared?

These comments are not to be construed as any defense of the Piggly-Wiggly Supermarket. We have patronized them on Sundays, just as we have patronized service stations, drug stores, small grocery stores, florists and restaurants on Sundays. Hundreds of people have done the same, and are still doing it.

If the officials of the City of South Fulton want to enforce the Blue Law, more power to them. But be fair about it! It has been said that laws are made to be broken. If some South Fulton and Fulton people are sincere in wanting the Blue Law enforced, then push the project to the ultimate degree.

CLOSE EVERYBODY. WHAT'S GOOD FOR THE GOOSE IS GOOD FOR THE GANDER.

'Twas Time When Only Convicts Had Numbers; Now, Everybody Is Law Violator Without 'Em

If you have a phobia about numbers, you are in for a rough time for the rest of your life, and the immediate outlook is that it is going to get worse, not better, in the future.

There was a time when only convicts got numbers, but everybody gets a number in today's machine age. Pretty soon grocery lists for the supermarkets may be made out in numbers. Feed the list into a computing machine and a conveyor belt will deliver your food pre-packaged with the tote bill right with them. All you have to figure out is how to pay for them.

I'm charter member 442-10-1716 in Uncle's social security system. That goes on my state and federal income tax returns, the building and loan association has it on my account number, and the bank puts it on your savings account number.

Beginning July 1, I got a new number for mail. Now I'm 231 Crestwood Drive, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. Also by phone there I'm 1-502-227-38104. My automobile has a number. My bank account has a number. My automobile driver's license has a number, and if I had a hunting and fishing license, I would have more numbers.

Even my dog has two numbers, vaccination, and license.

Although not employed under Social Security, my wife had to get a social security number to put on our income tax returns.

The way to get rich now is to design a wallet sized numbers book so everyone can keep up with all of his various numbers. No person can remember them all... that is, and remember anything else.

Pretty soon we all have to get a compact tape recorder to carry around with us for identification purposes. Imagine trying to cash a check in a strange town and being asked to identify yourself.

If the man had time to listen, you could play tape at him for about five minutes with nothing but a series of numbers. Even my gasoline credit cards have numbers.

The Post Office Department says that now that the ZIP Code is in full swing, our postal system is the most modern mail distribution in existence.

That, a lot of people are glad to learn.

I've got a little news, though, for the Post Office Department. All the numbers in the world aren't going to transport mail. Railroads have been busy taking off trains, curtailing the expedition system. To cure this a few years ago the Post Office Department instituted the Highway Post Office system... at least they said it was a system.

You just can't address mail to Aunt Minnie at Podunk, Arkansas and expect her to get it. You've got to have her area code number.

Well, there was a time when you could pick up the telephone in a small town and tell Central, "I want Bill Jones." You got Bill Jones. Now they ask for numbers a mile long... for there ain't no Central no more.

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission
By JOE JORDAN

One hundred years ago this week, Brig. Gen. John H. Morgan, with about 2,000 of his Confederate cavalry, crossed the Ohio River from Brandenburg, Ky., to the Indiana side and began an invasion of the North which took him eventually to a place near the Ohio-Pennsylvania state line within 75 miles of Lake Erie. It carried farther into the North than any other thrust launched from Confederate territory during the Civil War.

Morgan had sent on ahead of the main body some of the Tenth Kentucky under Capt. Samuel Taylor and Capt. Clay Merriwether, to seize boats for the crossing. They had found a river steamer tied up at the Brandenburg wharf and, capturing and manning it, had cruised about until they captured a second steamboat. Two regiments, the Second Kentucky and the Ninth Tennessee, were put across without their horses to drive off a force of Indiana state militia and establish a beachhead.

Before any others could cross, a Federal gunboat appeared and began firing shells at both parts of the divided Rebel division, making it vulnerable if attacked by land on either side of the river. Morgan's artillery took the gunboat under fire and after about an hour it steamed away, and the crossing was resumed. By midnight the last of the Confederates had been put ashore in Indiana. One of the captured steamers, in the service of the Union, was burned; the other, privately operated, was released.

The next day Indiana militia, firing from behind rail barricades, delayed the approach to Corydon, Ind., but a flanking movement drove them away, and the invaders set out for Salem, which they captured the following day. Here the provost guard began to have trouble restraining the men from pillaging. It seemed to be a mania, senseless and purposeless," Duke says in his "History of Morgan's Cavalry." The men "liberated" such useless things as bolts of calico, a bird cage with three canaries in it, and a chafing dish. Duke attributed it to a desire to retaliate in the enemy's country for all pillaging done in the South by Northern troops.

Marching in a generally easterly direction toward the Indiana-Ohio state line, the Confederates passed through town after town, pausing occasionally to scatter militiamen who opposed them briefly, and at Vernon detouring the town because there was a larger force there than Morgan cared to take on. The Rebels were averaging 21 hours a day in the saddle, and the strain was beginning to tell on them. At Vienna the telegraph office was captured before the telegrapher could give an alarm. Morgan's own operator manned the key and obtained valuable information about enemy movements.

At 1 p. m. on July 13 the troopers rode across the state line into Ohio and halted at Harrison for a rest of two or three hours. Feinting in the direction of Cincinnati, which he had no intention of attacking, Morgan then began an all-night march around it through its northern suburbs.

"SCARRED SAINTS"

BY ORAL ROBERTS

Let's go with him to Lytra where the Lord's Spirit came upon Paul and he fastened his eyes upon a hopeless cripple.

There was a rapport of faith, and Paul cried out, "Stand upright on thy feet." And the cripple leaped and walked, and they thought Paul was a god, and through these and other miracles they brought Paul and Barnabas downtown—as gods who had fallen out of the skies—and they bowed down and began to worship them.

But in a few hours that same crowd turned and threw the crown away and took a stone to its place. And they pelted Paul to a point of death. They really didn't stone him, for in a real sense it was the stoning of the Lord, because Paul was the instrument of conflict.

And it was there that we believe he received these "abundant revelations." We cannot prove this because we don't know whether he was in the body or out of the body, but through this experience he took leave of himself.

Paul's spirit somehow could not stay in the body at that time. Lying there in a broken, scarred, bruised heap; his spirit soared up beyond the sun and stars, beyond space and beyond mental reach; up where they sing the song of the Lamb; where the music has the right tune and where the language is perfect, where the communication is clear and where the face of Jesus is seen in its clarity.

And Paul talked, and he looked and he drank in, and he soared a little higher; and he was filled with the indescribable goodness of God, and was given a panoramic sweep of eternity. And the curtain was pulled back on the hidden riches of glory, and Paul saw the depth of the grace that Jesus gives to men. He heard a language that many believe was actually the speaking in tongues as the angels speak. It filled Paul and he knew that never again would he be like other men; that he would be different; that he had been touched by the glory that Moses had felt; that he had been given words before which his mind would be mute and which could not be understood by his limited mind. He knew that only by ecstatic utterance would those words have any meaning to him.

I believe this is one of the reasons Paul knew so much about speaking in tongues in the 14th chapter of First Corinthians. He had gotten the vision of ecstatic utterance in the third dimension, and when his mind and his soul came back into his body, they could not contain the heights and depths of the experience. Paul could not contain it and the Lord came to him and, in effect, said, "It's all right, little prisoner, I've taken care of that. I won't let anything happen to you now to make you proud. I'm going to send this thorn to you and the rest of your life this thorn will press against you. It will be like something in your shoe as you walk over gravelled roads. The gravel will be working its way into your flesh inside your shoes, and you will be stopping to take your shoes off to shake it out, only to take a few more steps and find more gravel in your shoes. You'll never lie down and have a full night's rest without your body aching, without one of those scars, as you turn over on it, making you squirm and twist.

"You'll never go into a city where they won't be against you. You'll never do anything without conflict being involved. You'll never take a trip on the sea without the storm striking. The snakes will try to bite you. Whatever you do and wherever you go, this old demon will be in people. They will come against you and it will be a thorn in your flesh. But I have shown you the depths of My love and the glory of My grace, and I've let you drink at the fountain. And that's going to sustain you."

Diary of Doin's

(Items gathered along Fulton's merryway for your pleasure and your scrapbook)

Something new has been added to the Fulton Country Club and you'd better believe it. Each Tuesday now, the ladies day luncheon is a thing of beauty and a joy forever, because the golfing-bridge playing gals don't have to worry around to get a "covered dish" together for the luncheon. The meal is catered by an out-of-town firm that is getting right popular around Fulton these days. Truth of the matter is that for the first time in nearly three years this diarist went out for the regular Tuesday get-together with no hesitancy about taking "something to spread on the table."

Actually we should have been doing this pleasant chore for a long time, for the Country Club is the place to find a lot of news for this diary. Visitors come and go . . . and when they do, at some time or another, they find their way to the Country Club for eating or relaxing or visiting.

Our first visit to ladies day in almost three years should have been postponed even longer. Longer, that is until we took some golf lessons, or decided to give up the game entirely. If ever a human being earned the title of "dubber" this reporter did Tuesday. Just to make Ernest Fall and the other members of the Greens Committee feel real good, we played into every new sand-trap, bunker, rough, and tree-studded fairway. The last three holes have always seemed a home-free sort of effort for us, but not Tuesday. Just as we teed-off on number seven, there was a harmless little pond there, that has been there for years. Even in our "learning" stages of the game we rarely hit the ball in the pond. But, in complete cooperation with all and sundry we hit, or shall we say tapped, a brand new ball into the pond, to be lost for this world forever.

It was a mess! The only redeeming feature of the game for us, but not for them, was the fact that the company was extremely congenial. After being partners with us this week Alberta Green, Maureen Treas and Margaret Jones will only be on nodding acquaintance with us. And why not!

The appreciated visit here of the Ivey family from West Point, New York is the occasion for the gay young smart set to be on the move this week Tuesday night

TO THE CHAMP . . . Mrs. Gaines Wilson, Jr., of Louisville receives the Women's State Amateur Golf Championship trophy from Phelps Anderson, superintendent of Kentucky Dam Village State Park, after she won the title Saturday at the Village Greens Golf Course. Watching is Margaret Jones of Fort Mitchell, whom Mrs. Wilson defeated 4 and 3 in the final.

Laverne and Norman Terry entertained at what was termed a "wonderful party" by the guests attending. The event at the Park Terrace was in honor of the Terry's grandchildren, the twin boys, Terry and Dick and lovely Susan. Saturday night the young folks gathered again when Stuart Gayle Voepel and Terry Williamham were hosts to another party at the Park Terrace.

Charlotte and Hank (Lt.-Col.) Ivey and Susan denied the homefolks the pleasure of their company last week-end when they took a trip to Clarksville and to Nashville. But the boys were here . . . 'nuff said.

Max B. Hurt, president of the "Stars in My Crown" drama association said to this diarist Tuesday night: "I'll tell you one thing, people in the Fulton area have certainly done their part to support the outdoor drama." Nothing could make us happier. Many groups have attended and many more are planning to do so. Congenial groups get together, drive up to Kenlake Hotel, have dinner and then go over to the amphitheatre and enjoy the lovely show. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Whitesell and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brady did last Wednesday, what many people are finding to be a wonderful way to spend an evening. They drove up to Kenlake Hotel, had dinner and then went over to see "Stars in My Crown." Why not give that a try yourself?

Ellen Davis and Bertie Brady entertained at a delightful get-together last week at the Park Terrace when they were hostesses at a mother-and-daughter luncheon. Their guests were Mrs. Norman Terry and her daughter Mrs. R. H. Ivey of New York and Mrs. Leon Browder and her daughter Mrs. George Johnson of Annapolis, Md. Mrs. Johnson and children are visiting here this week.

A lovely miscellaneous shower, honoring Miss Donna Carol Mabry, whose marriage to Glenn Nolan Howell took place on June 30, was given by Mrs. Clint Workman, Misses Katherine Williamson, Nancy Shuff, Sue Little and Carol Jeffers in the R. E. A. Building in Hickman on June 24.

The gift table was covered in a floor length cloth of white net over pink, with swags of the net caught at each end and in the center with satin bows. A crystal pedestal, holding a large cutglass bowl of pastel Queen Anne's lace, was placed on one end of the table and the gifts, wrapped in silver and tied in white, were arranged on the table.

Punch, nuts, mints and individual iced cakes were served to about sixty guests.

Take-A-Way Bride bingo was played during the evening, with the winners presenting their prizes to the honoree.

Another miscellaneous shower for Miss Mabry was given in the Crutchfield Methodist Church on June 27, by Mrs. J. L. Howell, Mrs. Glenn Dillon, Mrs. John McClanahan, Mrs. Tommy Bennett, Mrs. Gene Howard, Mrs. Cecil Wilkins and Mrs. Arlie Batts.

The gift table was covered with a floor length white cloth. White wedding bells centered the table skirt, and a bride doll in the center of the table had gifts arranged around it.

A clever game of matching numbers was conducted by Mrs. Tommy Bennett, with the prospective bride and groom being selected as contestants. Their total prize winnings were the many gifts.

Refreshments of cold drinks and cookies were served to seventy-two guests.

Woman Makes Smashing Debut

Palo Alto, Cal.—Mrs. Maria H. Casaurane, 80, of Palo Alto, went downtown to get some information from the American Automobile Association.

As she turned to drive into an adjacent parking lot she stepped on the gas instead of the brake and her car went right through a plate-glass window in the A.A.A. office.

She said, "Oh my goodness!" She was unhurt. Two A.A.A. employees, Florence West, 48, and Wade King, 52, were treated for bruises and released, police said.

Corvair 700 Club Coupe

The hardest part about parking a Corvair is finding a nickel

That may be a slight overstatement, but such jaunty comes easily when you're a Corvair owner.

And you can usually back it up—as easily as you can back up a Corvair. You'll find yourself doing that occasionally, if only to adjust the brakes—they're self-adjusting. That's all there is to it, and that's a good example of how delightfully easy Corvair is to own, drive and maintain.

But since we began by talking about driving, let's stick with that awhile. A large factor in the fun of driving a Corvair is the location of its engine in the rear. Why the rear? It gives Corvair extra traction on any road surface. It provides a nearly flat floor for more useable interior space. Best of all, it produces steering so light, so responsive, you wonder why no other American-made car thought of it.

Corvair's engine is also air cooled, we might add, which means there's no antifreeze or water for you to add. Ever.

All that pleasure from something so practical almost makes you think Corvair is unique among American cars. Which isn't surprising, because it is!

If You Haven't Met Mr. Zip, You'd Better; Fulton's Mr. Zip Has A Number... 42041

Mr. ZIP flashed across the country Monday in a government advertising campaign that should make Madison Avenue hang its head.

The blue-suited cartoon mailman is the symbol of what the Post Office Department believes is a revolution in the distribution of the U. S. mail.

Mr. ZIP will beam at you from the corner letterbox. He will catch your eye from the side of the mail truck. You'll see him on your mailman's pouch and your television screen.

Press a button on the right side of his belly at your post office and Ethel Merman will stagger you by belting out the ZIP code song-gimmicky words to go with the tune of—what else? "Sip-A-Dee Doo-Dah."

And the department will become its own biggest customer when 72 million cards—the largest single mailing in post office history—are dropped at every mailing address in the country, more addresses than even the Census Bureau and Internal Revenue Service have hit.

What they're trying to tell you is that you now have a ZIP code number to add to your list of area code numbers, all-digit phone number, Social Security number, income taxpayer number and credit card numbers.

ZIP stands for Zone Improvement Plan.

Fulton's ZIP Code is 42041. The new five-digit addressing code identifies every community or delivery station in the nation at a postal clerk's glance. It's designed to enable the mail to be sent directly to one of 553 sectional distribution centers.

Postmaster General J. Edward Day likes to point out that under the conventional city-and-state addressing system in use since Benjamin Franklin's time, addresses must be read as many as ten times en route by various postal employees.

While the immediate impact, in terms of speed, will be on the nation's large-volume mailers, the department is urging everyone including the one-a-month-letter writers to use the code number in addressing and on the return address.

SHORT CUT.

The Western Kentucky Parkway now under construction will cut about 15 miles from the present Elizabethtown-Princeton route.

"Stars In My Crown" Cast Believes "Mr. Rivers" Is Real Live Monster

There's a suspicion among the cast and crew at the Kentucky Lake Amphitheater that playwright Kermit Hunter created a monster when he added Mr. Rivers as one of his characters for "Stars in My Crown."

Rivers, a fantasy figure, is supposed to symbolize West Kentucky's four great rivers in the show and after raising havoc during most of the show is finally tamed late in the second act by the TVA.

The cast thinks maybe this "ain't necessary so." While rehearsing for the show, most of them were shaken when twice, just as Billy Edd Wheeler, who plays Rivers, went into his flood routine, rain began to fall.

Wednesday afternoon Rivers struck again, this time without any help from Wheeler. Just as a few members of the cast began to arrive for stand-in rehearsal, a small, black cloud floated over the park area and before it moved away, more than two inches of rain had fallen.

The results were fearsome.

Small rivulets began to flow down the sides of the amphitheater. As the storm became more intense, these grew to torrents which began to erode the bare banks alongside the theater. Eventually the stage was flooded despite a valiant effort by the cast to hold it back by hurriedly made dams of scrub lumber left over from the theater's construction.

When Rivers finally relented and the water drained away, the amphitheater looked an awful lot like the river valley must have looked after a flood. Mud was everywhere.

The cast reacted just as the characters in "Stars" reacted after a flood. They all pitched in and by show time, the stage was clean, the seats had been dried, and the sets which had been stored in high places to get them out of the overflowing water were back in place.

And, according to Director Burnett Hobgood, the performance that night was the best during the show's 10-day run.

Get-well wishes are extended to Mrs. Mary Dunn, who remains in a cast in Jones Clinic. Mrs. Dunn suffered a broken limb and crushed knee in a fall, instead of a broken hip reported by your writer last week. Beg pardon, Mrs. Dunn.

Rev. and Mrs. T. T. Harris arrived last week from Tallahassee, Fla., and many friends welcome them back home. They are living on the J. W. Bynum farm and were accompanied by Miss Ruth Harris and Mrs. Naomi Tuck and son Dickey, who will visit a few days in the Bynum home.

A downpour of rain fell here Sunday and all lowlands were covered. Some wind and electrical storm did damage to crops around about this section.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, of Dresden, are announcing the arrival of a little miss, born July 6 in the Obion County Hospital. Mrs. Smith is the former Janelle Cunningham and they have another daughter, Milady Lee, age 6. The brand new baby will answer to the name of Tracy Lynn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud McClain and son, Jerry, visited their mother, Mrs. Lexie Simpson, in Dresden Sunday afternoon.

James Ray Roberts is hobbling around on an injured limb, sustained while at work several days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Frields and son, Mike, will leave Tuesday for Los Angeles, Calif., after a two weeks vacation here with parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawrence McClain, Mrs. Ed Frields and other relatives in Fulton, Union City and Paducah. They are driving through via the southern route.

James Michael, and daughters, Sandra Jean and Linda Sue, have been visiting Mrs. Cox's father-in-law and mother-in-law, grand parents and Mrs. Dorothy Cox on the Martin Road. Mrs. Cox and daughters have now returned to their home in Warren, Mich., but Michael stayed for a longer visit.

The quarterly ladies night meeting of the Lions Club was held at Park Terrace on June 29, with members and their wives present.

After a delicious dinner, the following new officers were installed by outgoing president James Warren: Joe Treas, president; 1st vice president, Jim Huff; 2nd vice president, John Joe Campbell; 3rd vice president, Dr. R. T. Peterson; secretary, treasurer, Rev. W. O. Beard; lion tamer, R. D. Benedict; tail twister, Dr. Shelton Owens.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holland entertained twenty-eight boys and girls at their home on July 5, honoring Mike Campbell on his 14th birthday.

Dancing was enjoyed and birthday cake and ice cream were served by the host and hostess, assisted by Mrs. Lonnie Roper and Mrs. J. R. Holland.

Miss Betty Thomas, of Chicago, is spending this week with Miss Gertrude Murphy in her home on Eddings Street.

These cool July nights aid and abet only one thing... that's sleeping! Yet, the activities scheduled for these nights go on just the same... like Little League baseball. Tuesday night we went to see our oldest engage in such sport and we'll tell you if it hadn't been for thoughtful Minnie Nelle Boyd, who brought some blankets we wouldn't be here to write the story. Minnie Nelle was just out to watch the game... her son was not in it. She wanted to go home before the last session was over, but we wouldn't let her. We simply had to cuddle under those blankets until the game ended. The Boyds, the Ken Winstons and dozens of other families take their baseball seriously. In talking with Minnie Nelle she remarked... "We had a couple of GOOD games last night."

When asked what she meant by such enthusiasm she said: "My son was playing." That about sums it up!

Whenever the Baird family comes home for a visit we often have trouble deciding what title to give the head of the household. Danny is Doctor Baird, but he is also Lt.-Commander Baird in the Navy. He is a dentist as all of us know. Well, Danny and Joan and Steve and Mac are here for their appreciated summer time vacation with the home folks, which makes the Gene Hilliards, the Horton Bairds and all the McDades happy.

Danny has just completed a year's study of advanced dentistry at Bethesda Naval Hospital and George Washington University in Washington. His next tour of duty will be for two years at Annapolis, which is about as nice and distinguished an assignment as a Navy man can get.

But in addition to such a nice post, the Bairds have a real conversation item in their residence at Annapolis. The family will move into a brand new, never-lived-in two-story house that is owned by George Daley, a special assistant to President John F. Kennedy. The Daleys were nice enough to let the Bairds have the blueprints of that beautiful home so that Joan could start planning about where she will place the furniture, select the draperies and other appointments in the house.

Danny will be wending his way to Annapolis before the rest of the family, who plan to be around perhaps until September.

Nice sailing, eh Skipper! Wednesday's mail brought a nice note from Ruth (Caldwell) Wright, telling us of "new arrival" Hendon O. Wright, III. They are calling the young fellow "Hank" for short, and that appears to un-complicate matters as far as Grandfather Doc and Father Don are concerned. Ruth says that they have a rather unusual babysitter for young Hank, in the family's dog "Smudge."

"Smudge," is living up to the man's best friend bit, only he is Hank's best friend and constant watcher. "Smudge" has taken to sleeping beside Hank's bed at night and when Hank awakens crying, "Smudge" cries too. We agree with Ruth that it must be quite a chorus.

Mary Nelle Wright, Hank's proud grandmother has been in Norfolk for about ten days adding her welcome to the newcomer. Doc will fly to Norfolk Saturday. While there the grandparents will occupy Danny and Joan's living quarters. They hope to drive back to Fulton next week.

Miss Ruth Ann McIntyre Marries James R. Fowler At St. Edward's

Mr. and Mrs. James Roland Fowler

St. Edwards Catholic church in Fulton was the setting on June 29 for the wedding of Miss Ruth Ann McIntyre and James Roland Fowler.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Avery McIntyre of South Fulton and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Oden Fowler of the Fulton highway.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Father Carl H. Glahn, minister of St. Edward's. A nuptial mass followed the ceremony. Altar boys were Billy Simrell and R. Paul Westpheling III. Bouquets of white gladioli and white carnations interspersed with greenery graced the altar. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

Mrs. George Winter III of Union City presented a program of wedding music preceding and following the ceremony and the mass.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a gown of deep luster white satin, the fitted bodice featuring a scooped neckline. The long sleeves came to calla points over the hands. She wore a fingertip veil of silk illusion which fell from a crown of tiny pearls. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a white prayerbook, covered in brocade nylon, surmounted by a white purple-throated orchid showered with streamers and stephanotis.

Mrs. Jerry Wheat of Fulton served as matron of honor and Miss Mary Rita Sergerson of Union City acted as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Rose Etta McIntyre and Miss Nancy Matthews of South Fulton. They wore identical dresses of aqua blue satin designed with short sleeves and full skirts with bow belts. They wore matching pillbox hats and carried single long stemmed white carnations tied with tulle and white streamers.

Best man was Jimmy McIntyre and groomsmen were Glenn Fowler of Fulton, Roy Allen Harris of Memphis and David Fowler of Woodland Mills. Serving as ushers were Joseph Sergerson of Union City and Jimmy Joe Jones of South Fulton.

Mrs. McIntyre chose for her daughter's wedding a sheath of pale blue brocade satin with blue and white accessories. Mrs. Fowler, mother of the bridegroom, was wearing a beige lace dress with a matching jacket finished in scallops. Her accessories were in bone. Both wore white gardenia corsages.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given at the Park Terrace restaurant.

The bride's table, covered with an ecru lace cloth, had as its centerpiece an arrangement of white gladioli and carnations. Servings were Miss Sherry Lynn Wade of Memphis, Miss Patricia Sergerson of Union City and Mrs. Wayne Byassee and Mrs. Howard Rogers of Fulton.

The couple left for a short wedding trip, the bride wearing a turquoise blue linen sheath with matching jacket. She wore white accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

They are now residing on West View drive in Union City where Mr. Fowler is employed by K-T Distributing Co.

Preceding the wedding rehearsal of Miss Ruth Ann McIntyre and Mr. James Roland Fowler on June 28, a supper was given by Mr. and Mrs. Oden Fowler, parents of the groom-elect in their home. Guests were seated at the dining table and at card tables, attractively covered with pink linens and centered with pink candles in milk glass holders. Pink and white flowers were placed throughout the room. A buffet dinner was served to the members of the wedding party, the families and out-of-town guests, after which Miss McIntyre and Mr. Fowler presented gifts to their attendants.

Sight Comes To 72-Year Old Man With Help From Area Lion's Club

Bill Litsey, 72 year old Muhlenberg resident, tells Mary Ann McDonald, Central City Times-Argus feature writer about the wonderful experience of seeing again as a result of the efforts by a Lion's Club group. Totally blind for three years, Mr. Litsey is one of many that will be helped with the new program sponsored by the Kentucky Lions Eye Foundation and the Eye Bank at Louisville.

Because an alert Western Kentucky Lions Club and the continuing research going on at the Kentucky Lions Eye Foundation and Eye Bank at Louisville, a 72 year old Martwick, Kentucky, man can see again. Besides restoring precious sight to William Litsey, who has been blind in one eye for ten years, totally sightless for the past three, the case may well open up a whole new field of transplant eye-surgery.

Sometime ago, the officers and members of the new Drakesboro-Paradise Lions Club became aware of the plight of Mr. Litsey. Area physicians indicated a cornea transplant might be effective so Ivo Washburne, chairman of the club's eye-bank program, secured an appointment and together with two volunteers from among the orderlies at Muhlenberg County Community Hospital, drove him to Louisville for an examination on March 22.

The Foundation doctors confirmed earlier beliefs that an operation might be effective and scheduled him for the following Monday.

It was later found necessary to delay the work one day, but on March 26, a team of three doctors, Drs. Edwards, Schuler and Gosser, performed the required surgery, the first of its kind ever attempted in Louisville, for the cornea Mr. Litsey received had been in the sterile freezer of the Eye Bank for one entire year! Heretofore such transplants were never attempted later than 48 hours after the eyes had been donated.

The experiment had long been studied and has now been deemed a success, opening the field considerably for future transplant work everywhere.

During the lengthy and delicate operation, Mr. Litsey's eyes, failing for the past seventeen years, were found to be more deeply scarred than originally anticipated, indicating the probable need for an additional operation in the will be in Fulton County on June near future. This, too, if required, will be performed in Louisville.

The Doctors, however, have already deemed the original operation a success, as well as Mr. Litsey, who can now see shiny or moving objects, and can distinguish light and darkness—a major improvement from the total blindness with which he has been afflicted for the past several years.

He was brought back home by ambulance by Lion Washburne and two orderlies and is being cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Junior Vaught, until he returns to the hospital later this week for the removal of the stitches. Daily trips to the hospital were required for bandage changes; three orderlies, on a volunteer basis, assisted in this portion of his continuing care.

Mr. Litsey says he has a little pain in his eyes, but feels fine for the most part and is eagerly looking forward to the time when he can once again actually see and actively rejoin the world about him.

A former miner, planing mill manager and lumber yard worker, Mr. Litsey came to Muhlenberg county in 1913, from Arkansas. He married the former Miss Beulah Adcock of Martwick who died almost 17 years ago, about the time his vision started failing.

Since the case of Mr. Litsey became known, Lion Washburne reports that over 200 persons in the immediate area have pledged their eyes to the Kentucky Lions Eye Bank. The enthusiasm has likewise spilled over into adjacent areas as well, requiring a rush-order to the Eye Bank for additional pledge cards, and three Lions clubs in the area: Central City, Russellville and Guthrie have secured Eye Containers, with which to store and rush the corneas to Louisville as received from donors. The Drakesboro club has another on order. State Police continue to co-operate in expediting them, via a chain-system from post to post, as soon as received.

Because of Lions with a heart, science may take a big leap forward and a West Kentucky man may get a new pair of eyes!

Origin Of Art Found In Religion

New York—Art began in close connection with religion, but eventually split from its origins and developed an independent course of its own, says Gerardus Van der Leeuw. He traces the process in a new book called "Sacred and Profane Beauty: The Holy In Art."

Motorist Discovered Man 'Owned' Street

Newark. — Coronell Shuler qualified as one of the most surprised men during a run-in with another motorist.

Shuler told police he was turning his car around a corner when he found himself blocked by a double-parked auto.

He honked his horn, the other driver moved up to let Shuler through, and Shuler, drawing abreast, called out, "Do you think you own the street?"

"Yes," the other man replied and, in Shuler's words, "he pulled out a gun, aimed it at me, and I stepped on the gas as he fired."

Shuler, fearing the touchy driver might follow him, kept making turns until he saw a police car. Then he stopped and told his story.

There were two bullet holes in the rear of his car.

NOTEBOOK—

out a City Manager, would the law permit us to do so?

A.—No, it wouldn't!

Q.—Would you turn over a million dollar business to a $200.00 a month straw boss, which is what you'd get in a person without specialized training in such fields?

A.—That would be ridiculous.

Q.—With your obvious interest in city affairs, and your wide knowledge of what needs to be done, why don't you run for the City Commission to help guide the policies of our present form of government until the people can decide if they want a change?

A.—I can't, I'm in business!

Q.—Doesn't it cost you about three times more to do business and to live today than it did twenty years ago?

A.—That's putting it mildly.

Q.—The City's tax rate is the same today (75c per hundred dollars of assessment) as it has been for many, many years. Yet, the cost of doing city business has gone up just like yours. The cars wear out, the equipment wears out, the cost of living has gone up for city employees just as it has for you. You've HAD to increase the salaries of your employees to keep competent ones. Why do you expect magic results with the same situation in a city government?

A.—I guess my pocketbook is dictating to my mind instead of my common sense.

We need understanding. We need cooperation. Unless each of us lights one little candle in the light of civic-mindedness we'll be plunged into the darkness of stagnation, backwardness and hopelessness.

If the image of the City Manager's salary obliterates good sense, fire him. Jim Robey won't stay out of a job longer than it takes him to pick up the phone and get another one. If he should leave, the job will be open to any master-mind criticizing the system who will do the job much better for much less.

COMBS—

Wyatt was neutral throughout Breathitt's primary campaign against Chandler. His silence caused deep resentment in the Combs faction of the Democratic Party.

Combs himself has had no public words of reproach for Wyatt's neutrality in the primary. But his associates have been vehement on the subject and have opposed Wyatt's elevation to the governorship under any circumstances.

Watts said that he had no idea when the Justice Department would act on choosing a successor to Ford.

"Governor Combs is a very potent factor in the picture," he said. "And I would assume that his statement would enhance the chances of the other candidates."

Watts said several persons besides Moynahan have expressed an interest in the judgeship, among them, Kentucky Court of Appeals Judge Morris Montgomery.
